for Legislators

Each year, legislators across the country are faced with an array of bills and proposals related to specific health issues. The Georgia Health Policy Center at Georgia State University has more than two decades of experience working with the Georgia General Assembly and Governor's Office on health policy. The center provides objective information and acts as a neutral facilitator for local- and state-level discussions on a broad range of topics, including —

Medicaid

Insurance Access Gap

Behavioral Health

Health System Transformation

Rural Health

Long-Term Services & Supports

Upon request, the Georgia Health Policy Center offers members of the General Assembly:

- The Little Blue Book — a pocket glossary of terms and acronyms;
- One-on-one briefings on health-related topics, including health care financing;
- Issue-specific research on current health policy topics; and
- Comprehensive training series for members of the House and Senate and their legislative staff, known as the Legislative Health Policy Certificate Program and the Advanced Health Policy Institute.

Please contact us if you need information resources as you consider current topics on health care and health care financing.
